defendants herein, and others known and unknown to the grand jury, knowingly devised and engaged in a scheme to defraud financial institutions and other lenders, and to obtain money, funds, credit, and property belonging to these lenders by means of false and fraudulent pretenses, representations, and promises, which scheme is further described below.

5. It was the object of the scheme that defendants would and did fraudulently obtain more than $9,000,000 from financial institutions and other lenders by arranging and executing fraudulent real estate closings through which defendants fraudulently obtained disbursements of the financial institutions' and lenders' funds.

6. It was part of the scheme that defendants posed as, and solicited other individuals to falsely pose as, buyers and sellers of real estate which they had no actual interest in buying or selling.

7. It was further a part of the scheme that the defendants often obtained for themselves, and for some of the other participants in this scheme, false identification documents, such as Illinois drivers' licenses and Illinois identification cards, which contained false names.

8. It was further a part of the scheme that the defendants and other participants in this scheme often misrepresented their identities to the title companies, financial institutions, and other lenders.

9. It was further a part of the scheme that defendants caused mortgage brokers to arrange for financial institutions and other lenders to provide financing to the purported buyers of the real estate involved in the scheme.

10. It was further a part of the scheme that defendants caused real estate closing transactions to be held at the title companies.

11. It was further a part of the scheme that many of the defendants appeared at these real estate closings and falsely represented that they were buying and selling the real estate involved in the closings, when, in fact, the defendants had no actual interest in buying or selling the real estate.

12. It was further a part of the scheme that defendant JAN ROZYCKA appeared at several of the fraudulent closings and represented that he was an employee of the mortgage broker.

13. It was further a part of the scheme that defendant JAN ROZYCKA appeared at several of the fraudulent closings and falsely represented that his name was "John Hanus" and that he was an attorney who represented the purported buyers and sellers.

14. It was further a part of the scheme that defendant MICHAEL SKATULSKI appeared at, participated in, and supervised several of the fraudulent closings.

15. It was further a part of the scheme that defendants prepared, and caused to be prepared, fraudulent mortgage releases, which falsely represented that the banks and mortgage companies which held mortgages against the real estate involved in the scheme had released their mortgages against those properties.

16. It was further a part of the scheme that by presenting the false mortgage releases to the title companies, defendants caused the title companies to disburse to defendants and their agents the funds provided by the financial institutions and other lenders.

17. It was further a part of the scheme that defendants presented, and caused to be presented, to the title companies written instructions directing the title companies to issue checks to defendants and various other individual participants in the scheme.

18. It was further a part of the scheme that, in order to conceal the proceeds of the scheme, defendants often caused the checks from the title companies to be made payable to third parties.

19. It was further a part of the scheme that, in order to conceal the proceeds of the scheme, defendants caused the checks that had been issued to third parties to be endorsed over to the defendants and deposited into the defendants bank accounts.

20. It was further a part of the scheme that, in order to prevent the scheme from being discovered, and to promote the carrying on of the scheme, defendants often used some of the proceeds of the scheme to make the mortgage payments on the real estate involved in the scheme.

21. It was further a part of the scheme that, in order to promote the carrying on the scheme, defendants often used some of the proceeds of the scheme for down-payments on real estate involved in subsequent fraudulent closings.

22. It was further a part of the scheme that, in order to conceal the proceeds of the scheme, defendants often withdrew from their bank accounts large portions of the scheme proceeds in the form of cash.
